

"World Without End," Original Pageant Presented by Avon-Auroras

The Avons and Auroras presented their annual public program in Assembly Hall on Friday evening, January 26.

The pageant, entitled "World Without End," vividly presented the lives of those who have gone before us, and who have created our Christian heritage. As a stream is enlarged by waters continually flowing into it, so our culture has been enriched by Christian pioneers.

After a prelude of instrumental and choral music, the voice of the Spirit of the Past, Harold Bauman, was heard reading the prologue. As the lights came on, Ferne Barkey as Miriam, the Singer, sang. She related to Marcellus from "The Robe" by Lloyd Douglas, the story of how Christ had given her a voice. The Apostle Paul's letter to the Philippians was read by Frank Byler and a reading chorus; and the Voice of the Past related the significance of Paul's life.

St. Francis of Assisi, in the character of S. Jay Hostetler, explained to the brothers the true meaning of the Christian teachings of Jesus, and what love meant. One of the brothers read the rules of the Franciscan Order.

Pictures of the sculptures of Michaelangelo (Paul Friesen) were projected on the wall, while he explained his convictions of art as a tool of God when he addressed his sculpture of Moses.

The chorus sang "A Mighty Fortress is our God," and Robert Keller spoke a tribute to Martin Luther, John Calvin and Menno Simons.

William Penn (Ralph Gerber) defended his legal rights and was sentenced to prison by the jury. But his work as Statesman was another step upward.

The Genius, Pascal, was a pioneer in the scientific world. He dared to question the accepted theology as Richard Yoder argued about "sufficient or efficacious grace."

The music of Johann Sebastian Bach, the Giant, was played, and The Voice reminded those present that generations have been uplifted by the strains created by this master.

Russell Krabill as The Teacher, Christopher Dock, reprimanded a pupil for mischief and sought God's help in leading childish hands toward the right.

As Marie Moyer sang "Ich Liebe Dich" Elizabeth and Robert Browning appeared. Helen Rohrer as Elizabeth Barrett, read a letter she had written to Robert beseeching him to pour himself into his poetry, and to defend simply the Christ whom they knew. Kenneth Heatwole as Robert Browning read the letter written in reply to this, accepting the challenge.

The chorus read a part of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," and the Voice recounted Florence Nightingale's sacrifice as a nurse in the Crimean War. Her mother read a letter from Florence describing the hospital conditions, and a soldier (Paul Hertzler) expressed gratitude for the mercy of the women nurses.

John Samuel Coffman's picture showed the face of the man who did more than any other single man in helping to establish what has come to be Goshen College. Frank Byler read the speech John S. Coffman gave at the dedication of the Elkhart Institute.

The Spirit of the Past becomes the Spirit of the Present and Future. Richard Yoder, as a Goshen College student, pledged the life of youth in building higher the steps of the Christian heritage of tomorrow. Mary Lou Farmwald offered a prayer of dedication.

The audience left as the chorus sang another hymn.

The script for the pageant was written by Lois Rensberger and Daniel Miller, who were the committee program chairmen.

TEA GIVEN FOR W. B. S. GIRLS

A tea, sponsored by the Kulp Hall Standards committee, was given for the Winter Bible School girls in the Kulp Hall social room Wednesday afternoon, January 24, at 4:10. Flora Jean Hostetler and Carol Byler poured the tea.

They were assisted by the following hostesses: Maxine Troyer, Marjorie Nafziger, Dorothy Horst, Florence Roth, Ada Schrock, Mercie Conrad, Jean Yoder, Ruth Byler, Colleen Barton, and Kathryn Miller.

Tea, cookies, nuts, and open faced sandwiches were served. Those serving on the foods committee were Ruth Alderfer, Vera Headrick, and Clara Esch. After the refreshments were served, the girls were shown the hostesses' rooms.

W. B. S. PARTY

Students of the Winter Bible School and the Holderman Literary Society met together at the Goshen College Cabin for an evening of fun on Monday, January 29.

For entertainment the Winter Bible School students provided a variety of activities among which were group singing led by Vernon Yutzy, a clever conversational duet, a piano solo, and as the high-light of the evening, a debate in which it was decided (whether or not) the place of woman in the house should be supreme. The debate was judged by Bro. Lester Hershey. The evening was brought to a close with the singing of several numbers by a mixed quartet.

WOMEN'S DISCUSSION CONTEST TO BE HELD SOON

Friday evening, February 2, is the time set for the annual women's discussion contest sponsored by the Vesperian Literary Society. Three women will be chosen from the candidates for each society. These six will each give an expository address, ten minutes in length, on a subject of their own choosing. All women of the college are eligible for entrance in this contest.

The judges will be chosen from the faculty by the presidents of the two competing societies, and the Vesperian Literary Society will award a prize to the winner. The contest last year was won by a Vesperian freshman, Elaine Sommers.

All This and Studies, Too

Busy? I used to think that I was—that is, until I was told to scout around to find out what some of our ministers and ThB students do to occupy their free time! And what did I find? Presumably, that the more one has to do, the more he gets done and well.

There is a group of men who have no regular appointments, but who are frequently found preaching in the churches of the surrounding community. Among these is Don King, who came to Goshen last summer from Kansas, and who recently acquired the added responsibility of a new member of his family. Clifford Snyder, a Canadian, is another happy father who has come to Goshen College to work for a ThB degree. Roy Koch, pastor of St. Jacobs, Ontario, Mennonite Church has come back to Goshen for more Bible training. S. J. Hostetler and William Hallman, returned missionaries from India and Argentina, respectively, find almost every Sunday filled with special appointments regarding their work in the foreign fields. Laurence Horst, pastor of the Peabody, Kansas, Mennonite Church, teaches a Sunday School class each Sunday

Devotional Committee Conducts Poll

In cooperation with the sponsors of the YPCA, the Devotional Committee submitted a questionnaire to the student body on Wednesday, Jan. 24. The purpose of this poll was to receive suggestions from the student body and faculty members, since the committee endeavors to help each person on the campus in his particular spiritual needs.

The results of the questionnaire show that the five types of programs in student preference rank as follows: (1) Discussion of a problem; (2) Devotional or worship service; (3) Informational; (4) Outside speakers; (5) Doctrinal. One hundred and twenty-five students preferred conjoint devotionals while forty-four voted for separate meetings. It was quite evident that the present time for prayer meeting is satisfactory in most cases, although it makes it very difficult for out-of-dorm students to attend. One hundred and seventeen persons use "The Upper Room" with fifty-two voting that they did not. Among the other devotional guides used, "Abundant Living" by E. Stanley Jones is the most popular.

Among the comments were such statements as these:

"I think the quiet hour should be observed more in the dormitory. Everyone walks and talks as if it weren't being observed."

"I would be interested in knowing more about the Federation of Churches."

"We should spend a longer period of time for prayer in our prayer meetings."

"Talks on attitudes toward those with whom we live would be valuable."

"We should have more intercession for our missionaries and not so much for ourselves."

"I would enjoy programs on what we as Mennonites believe, and what our part is in the work of the church."

"Competition between the profs for time for outside reading eliminates sufficient time for devotions, recreation, and independent reading of good magazines and articles."

at the Congregational Church besides filling preaching appointments in this community.

Paul Lauver, a post-graduate working for a ThB, spends every other weekend in Archbold, Ohio, and one week of each month in Chicago, in Mexican Mission work. Russell Krabill and Ford Berg, two other ThB students, find not only their week-ends filled to capacity, but week-days also, for they superintend the Sunday Schools at Locust Grove and East Goshen, respectively. At the present time Frank Byler, a minister from West Liberty, Ohio, is teaching a course in the Winter Bible School, finding time once a month to preach at West Liberty, Ohio, in addition to his school work. Darwin O'Connell, assistant pastor at the Lima, Ohio, mission, also goes to Ohio one week-end a month. Jacob Weirich, a new student who has come from Beaver Dam, Pennsylvania, for the second semester, goes home every two weeks to preach for his congregation. Paul Lederach, a senior ThB student, is well "booked" for the rest of the semester. He will go to Detroit, Michigan, Morton, Illinois, and to his home in Pennsylvania (Continued on page 4)

MISSIONARY FOR VESPER SPEAKER

S. M. King, a recently returned missionary from India, is scheduled to speak in a Vesper service in the Chapel Hall on Sunday afternoon, February 4. Bro. King has had a wide and varied background of experience in foreign work. He and his wife taught in a government school in the Philippine Islands for one term. After returning to this country he studied in the University of Chicago. In 1936 the King's were appointed by the Mennonite Mission Board as missionaries to India. During his term of service there Bro. King continued his educational work, succeeding Ernest E. Miller as head of the high school and normal school. He also served as treasurer of our Mennonite Mission in India.

Since their return to the United States a month ago, the King's and their two sons have been living at Mrs. King's former home in Missouri. Bro. King, well qualified with up-to-date knowledge of the India mission field, will probably discuss some phase of present day problems in mission work there.

GERMAN CLUB HOLDS JANUARY MEETING

On Monday evening, January 28, the German Club had its usual "Gesangabend" in Aurora Hall from 7:00 to 8:00 p. m. An emphasis was put in hearty singing and enjoyment of German songs. The group concentrated on religious music and also learned some new songs at this meeting.

Henry Esbensen, a tenor and a senior at the North Manchester high school, will present a recital of German art songs at the February meeting of the German Club. Mr. Esbensen is a second year German student. A pianist, also from North Manchester, will fill in the intermissions with piano solos by German composers.

At the March meeting of the Club the annual poetry interpretation contest will be held. There will be two classifications of contestants. Those having one year or less of German will be in the first class and will recite Friedrich Ruckert's "Barbarossa." The second class will be composed of students have more than one year of German and will recite Heinrich Heine's "Die Wallfahrt nach Kevlaar." This program is of exceptional interest, as each student will give his individual interpretation of the poem.

Professor Sudermann will present German ballads at the April meeting of the German Club, in order to stimulate a better appreciation of them. This will conclude the programs for the Club for the remainder of this semester.

BERRY ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Don Berry, writer of "News Parade," attended an important committee meeting at the Hotel Cleveland, Ohio, January 20 and 21. Don is national secretary of the Pilgrim Fellowship, national youth organization of the Congregational Christian churches. This meeting was a constituent part of the mid-winter Mission Council meeting of the Congregational churches.

Gladys Graber entertained about twenty girls at a four o'clock tea on Wednesday, January 24. Everyone enjoyed the hour of relaxation and refreshment.

J. N. Kaufman, former President of the Board of Missions and Charities, and his wife, Lillie Shenk Kaufman, former missionary to Africa, were welcome guests on our campus over the week-end of January 21. Brother and Sister Kaufman are under appointment for the India Mission field, and stopped with us while traveling east to await sailing arrangements.

During this short visit they were given a number of opportunities to address the student body. Brother Kaufman spoke in chapel on Friday morning. Then on Sunday afternoon Brother and Sister Kaufman spoke at the Vesper service. Sunday evening they were entertained by the Foreign Missions Fellowship at the home of President and Mrs. Miller. Members of the Mission Board were also the guests of the Fellowship.

On Monday Brother Kaufman spoke to the missions class, and on Tuesday evening Brother and Sister Kaufman spoke to a Winter Bible School class.

Through these many contacts with the Kaufman's it was possible to feel the deep sense of mission they have, as they prepare for their three year term of service. The challenge to serve came loud and clear in Brother Kaufman's talk to the mission's class Monday. Those who heard him were inspired to greater dedication to the cause of missions.

Brother and Sister Kaufman left the campus on Wednesday morning for the east, stopping on their way in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. The students wish the Kaufman's God's richest blessings as they serve Him on the India mission field.

FOREIGN MISSION FELLOWSHIP MEETS

The members of the Foreign Missions' Fellowship gathered in President and Mrs. Miller's home, bright with hospitality for them, Sunday evening at 7:30 for a reception in honor of Bishop and Mrs. J. N. Kaufman who are on their way to India. Each of the members was introduced to the Kaufmans on entering, and then an informal time of fellowship followed.

When the majority of the guests had arrived, President Miller set up a slide projector and screen, and everyone gathered around to look at several dozen miscellaneous slides on our mission in India.

Most of the pictures were of the early beginnings of the mission, and Bishop Kaufman was very well qualified to give his impromptu lecture on these old scenes. He was ably prompted by the other India missionaries present.

When the pictures were finished refreshments were served by the hostess. The gathering was dismissed with a prayer by Dr. S. C. Yoder, who petitioned a safe journey to India for the Kaufmans.

PRESIDENT MILLER WILL ATTEND CONFERENCE

The Executive Committee of the Mennonite Board of Education, of which President Miller is a member, will meet in Kansas February 9, 10, and 11 at Hesston College. This meeting is especially concerned with the problems and needs of Hesston College and will aim at the proper solution of these needs.

All over our country classes in adult education are filled with men and women who have discovered, long after their formal education was over, that they needed training in public speaking to carry on more effectively their particular work in Christian service, the professions, industry, business and farming.

Goshen College has the goal of providing opportunities for students in all fields of extracurricular activity. The field of forensics has not been neglected. For those who enjoy reading poetry, the Avons sponsor an annual poetry-reading contest. For those who are interested in the vital problem of peace, there are the peace oratorical contests. In relatively few colleges is there such an excellent opportunity as this one for research and self-expression on this particular topic. For those who have any subject at all in which they are especially interested, there are the discussion contests.

However, in a recent speech contest there were only two contestants, one of whom entered rather late in the game so that the verbal expositions could be called a contest in the first place! What does this indicate? Are students revolving so turbulently in their super-accelerated whirls that they do not even notice the existence of these opportunities? Are they so devoid of ideas that they feel there is nothing to say on the platform? Are the prizes too small? Is it a fear that the audience will be bored? I don't know.

But my purpose in writing this editorial is to remind the remnant of the Goshen College students who have reached the end of this paragraph that the following contests are on the calendar for the coming months.

WOLF! WOLF!

One of the biggest temptations that presents itself in releasing juvenile tendencies is the fire bell in the Ad building. The little chain hangs innocently beside the stairs, and it is not out of the way to the piano practice rooms or their receiving room to give it several yanks. Upon disturbing the peace with the bell's piercing clangs, Professor Yoder leaves his office way up on third to make sure no smoke is pouring up the stairs, which by the way are architectural wonders as far as chimneys are concerned.

It seems that Professor Yoder should be commended for his caution, since there are several hundred others who sit in that building daily with no idea what they would do in an emergency. Yes, we have yearly chapel talks on fire prevention, on having ropes in our rooms, etc., but as far as actual practice in leaving the Ad building in case of fire is concerned, there is none. My heart goes out to those on third, for if a fire should break out, and the stairs were blocked, all would have to dash through the balcony and then find themselves falling down the antiquated, too steep, rickety fire-escape. Those on second do have an element of safety with that broad cement ledge around the building even with the windows. Here it would be possible to sit half-way between earth and sky for quite a while, at least until help would come.

If during chapel quick evacuation would become necessary, our guess would be that dangerous, unnecessary, hysterical disorder would break out because no adequate system for quick departure is known or practiced by the students.

Something should be done whereby it would be possible to clear out fast, in one or two minutes, for the Ad building's ancient wiring and heating plant would allow for no spare time. The fire bell is not a plaything, and when we hear it ring it should mean GO! Not pellmel, but in a swift, orderly, life-saving manner.

Y Reflections

John Milton, the poet, the giant in thought, was a man whose love for God and his people inspired his heart and mind to lofty ideals of service. But the political pressure of the day checked his reforms; his own physical blindness threatened to drain his resources. Yet under these circumstances his spiritual vision became keen and productive, and thus he philosophized:

"God doth not need
Either man's work or his gifts. Who best
Bear his mild yoke; they serve him best.
His state
Is kingly; thousands at his bidding speed,
And past o'er land and ocean without rest;
They also serve who only stand and wait."

How difficult it would be for a dreamer of dreams to stand and wait! Surely the wells of his resources would be filled to overflowing. But Milton, along with ages of God-fearing men, had learned that God speaks to the men who wait. He learned to be still and know God, to place his confidence in God by quietly communing with Him, to submit to His guidance through patient expectation. He experienced the promise that "they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

"May we in our youth, O God, learn to wait patiently for Thee. We have our dreams and visions, and we truly long to serve Thee. Thy love for us prompts us to serve; but we cannot know without Thy direction what is best for us, and we become impatient with our insignificant tasks. Teach us to wait and to reach up in confidence to Thee, our source of strength. Grant us our prayer, for we know that only through patient waiting and listening to Thy voice we may be used acceptably in Thy service."

Let us make a little song

LONELY?

Lonely?
Yes dear, I am lonely too.

Every day that you're away.
Yes dear, I am lonely too.

lonely.

Over The Dam . . .

"Little fish, little fish, come from the sea;
Your head in the water, and your tail toward me."

We thought we heard the old call, and we finned down the icy sidewalks. It wasn't the call; it was Esther Eash, snoring over a reserve book again . . . Speaking of sleep, we hear . . . Florence Roth is afraid to sleep in class (note this, dear professors), because she might talk in her sleep. Please review our column of approximately a year ago . . . Red Brubaker has the solution for the conflict between the need of rest and a heavy study schedule. Sleeping on his books, he imbibes knowledge by the process of osmosis, and that's his approach to literature . . . On the other hand, Dickie Yoder now ranks with Plato, Socrates, Kant, Wenger, Hershberger, and all the other philosophers. We wish you'd take shorthand in your dreams Dickie, so that you could preserve for future generations the profound observations of your unslumbering mind. "Man is . . . rational, and false." What was that third quality, anyway?

But we're college fish, and we can't sun ourselves in the peaceful pools of slumber. Things are happening—fast—two at a time, as . . . Bert and Bill meeting Wanda at the yes-and-no room door at one and the same time . . . Dave Miller doing Calculus in English Com. IV. We suggest: that Rox be a little slower to move, and the class be a little more deliberate in passing the motion that Dave cease the practice. After all, we're working under an accelerated program. Since the proper parliamentary action has been taken, Dave, we suppose it will be best for you to submit. "Welcome discipline," advised our lecturer, Mr. Haboush.

If you missed us, we were in Canada, poring through the vital statistics, and we couldn't find it. We returned by way of Washington, and Kittrick, American citizen. Woe is us, We thought you were a "furriner."

We slipped between the cash register and the Sheaffer case for a moment of rest. A shadow—long and slender—Bud Smith, looking at stationery samples . . . Have you ever considered changing your line instead of using a new type of stationery, Elbert? . . . The hands of the clock pointing to eight . . . Furrows gathering in Sprinkle's brow . . . We draw our scales closer about us and shiver sympathetically with the Miller family. Don's late to work again, indicating that the "furnace stoker broke down" and he has to stay at home to fix it.

From the poets again, we quote in farewell Burn's words, not the words of Burns: "Shall we play contact?" To our prosaic mind that sounded as though it might be the way a poet takes his leave.

(The opinions expressed in this and other columns, are those of the authors, and should not be construed as opinions of the college.)

Current German dispatches place the Russian avalanche in the streets of the city of Breslau. Since the DNB has been releasing the news of the eastern front more quickly than Moscow, it is reasonable to suppose these reports have some truth and are pertinent to the situation. The Red Army, still unchecked in its momentous drive, is now devastating the industrial towns of German Silesia. The proximity of the Red Army to Berlin is astounding. Stalin's battalions are closer to the German capital than Goshen College is to Indianapolis. This fact may account for the German's rushing great quantities of men and material from the west to stop the Russians. Undoubtedly, if the alternative were to present itself, the German High Command would prefer American occupation to Russian, as the lesser of the two evils. The possibility of effecting the long-awaited east-west pincer movement has been greatly increased by the American counter-drives. Working together the Allied armies on the continent may soon be able to place the period in the sentence of National Socialism.

The Senate has tackled the job of whittling the head position in the Department of Commerce down to Mr. Wallace's reported size. The passage of the George bill, to remove the RFC and its billions in loans from that department, may speed the confirmation of Wallace's appointment. Opposition to confirmation centers around three things: (1) lack of experience in the field of commerce and economics—a fact which Mr. Wallace does not think should hinder him; (2) the political aspect—an unveiled, undisguised political pay-off which might form a coalition among Republicans and rebellious southern Democrats; (3) Mr. Wallace's work with the theory of scarcity while Secretary of Agriculture—a policy that cost him the trust and respect of the American farmer and businessman alike. Incompetence, however, seems to be the major issue, and once the RFC is separated from the department, little remains to block Senate confirmation of Henry Agard Wallace, one-time Vice-president in charge of almost everything, as supreme head of the Department of Commerce.

At the Clinton Frame church, Sunday evening, January 21, a number of college students assisted in the young people's meeting. Kenneth Heatwole spoke and a quartet composed of Mary Ruth Mishler, Romaine Stahl, Denton Croyle, and John Hess sang several numbers.

The gospel team composed of Ray Bair, Russell Krabill, Paul Lederach and Wilbur Miller gave a program at the North Goshen Mennonite Church Sunday evening, January 21.

Elaine Sommers attended the funeral of her grandfather, J. S. Horner, near Kokomo, Sunday, January 21.

HABOUSH BEAUTIFULLY INTERPRETS 23RD PSALM

Mr. Stephen A. Haboush appeared on the Goshen College lecture program Thursday evening, January 25, to give his interpretation of one of the world's best-loved pieces of literature—The Twenty-Third Psalm.

Dressed in his native costume of a Galilean shepherd, Mr. Haboush began with a few words of appreciation for America, his adopted country. Of Galilee today he said, "Today the Galilean skies are crisscrossed with bombers . . . there are cars . . . new roads . . . a quarter million strange men in uniform . . . but still shepherds tend their flocks on hills as of long ago."

What was the author of the Psalms? "A genius," said Mr. Haboush, "an astute statesman . . . a poet . . . and above all, a man with dramatic ability . . . for through him, nature spoke."

"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." The lamb is, next to the human baby, one of the most helpless and defenseless of all living creatures. It is quite dependent on its shepherd's care. Also, its vision is rather poor; the sheep knows the shepherd by his voice.

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters." Shepherds are afraid to take their sheep to fast-flowing waters. Instead, they bring them to quiet, fresh streams, perhaps a trench, dug by the river Jordan, which brings fresh water into the green pastures.

"He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake." The shepherd never drives his flock from the rear; that is left to hirelings. It is the duty of the shepherd to lead or walk beside the flock, to bring them to the greenest pasture, to walk ahead of the sheep for protection from wild animals and robbers.

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; they rod and thy staff they comfort me." The Galilean shepherd's rod is a wooden club with a thick head. Below the head of the rod is a wide band of bright metal which flashes in the light. Thus a shepherd can signal to his fellows on distant hills. It was the custom to drive nails into the head for each animal killed, thereby making a formidable weapon. The shepherd's staff is about five feet long.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil." The shepherd carried with him always a small quantity of olive oil; the ram's horn was replaced by the bottle as the years rolled on. Snakes were plentiful; when one of them bruised the face of a sheep and the shepherd drew out the poison, the face of the sheep was anointed with olive oil, because of its healing properties.

"My cup runneth over." The people of Palestine have an expression which means the same as our "Thank you" which is used to express thanks for the common thing. But whereas our "thank you" serves for great and small alike, the Galilean shepherd if he wishes to express special thanksgiving, affection, and appreciation, uses the phrase which, translated, is "my cup runneth over."

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever." The constant concern and care of the shepherd is for his sheep; he loves them, knows them by name. In closing, Mr. Haboush told of an incident typifying the shepherd's love for his flock: In the evening the shepherd places his staff over the door of the fold, allowing the sheep to come in one at a time. When a sheep is found missing the shepherd goes back to the hills, perhaps miles away, in the dark to search for the missing sheep. The shepherd must call, for the sheep cannot be located except by its cry. This particular night the sheep was found just in time—a wolf had also found the helpless creature a moment beforehand.

To everyone who heard Mr. Haboush's talk, the Twenty-Third Psalm will hold newer and clearer meaning.

THE INQUISITIVE QUIZZER

Question asked: Is there anything on the campus that you would like to see changed?

Ada Schrock, Junior, Salisbury, Pennsylvania

I'd like to have the clocks turned back to radio time.

Ford Berg, Senior, Dalton, Ohio
... I wish we had better lights. We sit in the Bible Room from 1 until 4 o'clock and can hardly see to read.

Bob Hostetler, Senior, Baltic, O.

I'd like to see more piano practice rooms and better pianos, and for quartets that don't use pianos there should be some other place to practice.

Miss Wyse, Home Economics Professor

I suggest that breakfast be served cafeteria style between 7 and 8:30 each morning so that students who are now missing breakfast could get their sleep as well as their rightful food; the health on the campus would be improved.

Willodean High, Sophomore, Napanee, Indiana

All the piano practice rooms should have lights in them, and college students should be allowed to use the rooms before others.

Ruth Byler, West Liberty, Ohio

I'd like to see a nicer prayer room in the girls' dormitory.

FRENCH CLUB SEES PICTURES

On Monday evening, January 22, the French Club met in Aurora Hall from 7:00 to 8:00 for its January meeting. The program consisted of group singing of French songs led by Miss Lois Gunden and pictures portraying French scenes. Miss Gunden explained from these pictures how the country looks in France, the types of houses which one sees, and also places where she had done relief work. The territory which these pictures covered was from the southern part of France east to Marseilles and up the Rhone river as far as the city of Lyons. About twenty-five members were present at this meeting.

Lois Blosser attended the wedding of her sister Laura to Isaac Helfrick of Pennsylvania on Sunday, January 21, at the North Lima Mennonite Church. Paul Yoder, a student here last year, performed the ceremony. Afterwards, a reception was held at the home. Mr. Helfrick is in CPS at Belton, Montana.

MEN'S DISCUSSION CONTEST

The annual men's discussion contest between the Auroras and Adelprians and sponsored by the Aurora Literary Society, was held on Friday evening, January 19, at eight o'clock. There were only two contestants: Paul Lederach for the Auroras and Wilbur Miller for the Adelprians.

Paul Lederach spoke first. His subject was "Box-Car Melodrama," a discussion of his experiences working on a railroad several summers ago. He told of the interesting characters with whom he had worked, and some of their experiences.

Wilbur Miller spoke on "The Passing of Old Thunder," a discussion of an old Fordson tractor in the Leacock manner. In a very humorous way he told of all the difficulties entailed in getting this tractor to work. In concluding he remarked that a new era of American agriculture entered when the Fordson tractor went out.

The Auroras awarded a globe to Wilbur Miller, the winner. The judges were Paul Erb, chairman, Mary Royer, and John C. Wenger. A ballot was also taken from the audience, the decision of the audience agreeing with that of the judges.

CPS MEN WRITE

Many a Goshen College boy, who is now stationed at a CPS Camp or in some branch of service, was made happy at Christmas time when he received a copy of the devotional book, "Portraits of Christ." Members of the YPCA emergency service committee have been rewarded from their efforts through the letters of appreciation from the boys. A few of the letters follow:

Dear YPCA Members:

I want to express my sincere thanks for the book, "Portraits of Christ," which I received from you at Christmas time. I find this book an excellent devotional aid as well as an interesting study of the book of Mark.

Your remembrance during the holiday season is appreciated, and it shows the alertness of your organization to be of service where and when it can. Thanks again for your kindness.

Sincerely,

ADELPHIANS 56—AURORAS 49

January 19 R.P.

In the first meeting between the two society basketball teams this season, a packed gym of spectators witnessed a thrill-packed game of fast, hard basketball. The Adelphians, with Bair and Wenger each hitting the cords twice, jumped in a 12-5 lead at the end of the first quarter. In the second quarter the teams played on fairly even terms and the half time score read 24-18 with the Adelphians in front.

At the start of the second half the fireworks began. In this period the Adelphians ripped the cords in a sum total of 23 points. Twelve of these were personally accounted for by Bair. The Auroras did fancy scoring themselves this period, but couldn't quite match the pace set by Bair. They dropped 18 points in this period. After this barrage of points the score read 47-36, and it was this lead that stood up in the final quarter. The Auroras rallied desperately in the final quarter and although they outscored the Adelphians 13-9, they couldn't secure the lead the Adelphians had piled in the first three quarters. As the final gun sounded, the score board read 56-49 with the Adelphians on top. Both teams played the hard, fast type of basketball that always characterizes society games, and will be ready to go full gun at their next meeting, which will be in the near future.

JUNIORS 20 — SOPH-SR 18

January 19, R.P.

In one of the oddest games of the season the Juniors defeated the Soph-Sr's in an extra period 20-18. The Juniors were able to do next to nothing in the first half as the offensive efforts netted a mere 5 points, while the Soph-Sr's pushed through 14 points and held a 14-5 edge at half time.

However, the second half was a different story as the Juniors slowly started an offensive of their own, and held the Soph-Sr team to a mere 4 points in the entire second half. Late in the final quarter Wenger dropped a set shot to tie the score at 18-18, and just before the final whistle Bauman was fouled and had a chance to win the game, but his shot missed fire and the game went into an extra quarter. A sudden death period with the first team scoring two consecutive points, the winner. Battling desperately, the Juniors halted an assault on their basket and took the ball, but they also failed to score. Then, as the Soph-Sr's were bringing the ball up the floor Paul Friesen intercepted a pass and in a solo dash for the basket scored the game-winning points.

FROSH 54 — P.G. 47

January 24, R.P.

The Frosh avenged an earlier defeat by the P. G.'s this evening by a score of 54-47. It was a hard fought game the whole way, with the last quarter fast and furious. The Frosh team led by Pickering and Bair held a 27-18 half-time advantage and by the end of the third quarter had stretched it to 42-28 and the P.G.'s appeared to be out of the game. But here the complex of the game changed and the P.G.'s staged a terrific rally and pulled to within 4 points before the Frosh outfit found itself, and stopped the rally and finally won out by a 7 point margin. It was Alderfer, F. Byler and G. Yoder who led this last ditch attack and between them netted 17 points. Had the defense of the P. G.'s not cracked late in the game it might have been a different story. Both teams deserve credit for playing heads up ball.

PG's WIN FROM SR-SOPHS 39-32

Basketball fans who turned out to the College Gymnasium Friday evening were treated to two outstanding games. The first between the PGs and Soph-Srs. turned out to be an evenly matched contest that kept the crowd in a constant uproar.

The PG team broke into an early lead, but the Soph-Srs. did not relax, and they continually threatened the score. Glen Yoder with 16 points was assisted by Frank Byler with 12 in leading the PGs to victory.

Bud Smith and Al Miller were tied for Soph-Sr. scoring honors with 10 points each. All the Soph-Sr. scoring was from the field, because the PGs did not have a single personal four called against them.

FROSH SWAMP JRS. 67-38

The evening's second encounter was notable for the sharp shooting of both teams. From the outset of the game it was evident that the Juniors would be unable to cope with the hot Frosh quintet, but they played gamely and were able to rack up 38 points before the final whistle sounded.

Wenger played a top game for the Juniors, but his activities were curbed by four fouls that he drew in the first half. Despite this, he led the Juniors with 16 points. W. Miller followed with 10. A. Henderson was high for the Frosh with 22 points; D. Pickering was close behind with 20.

Women's Sports

The eight girls' basketball teams playing full schedules regularly on Tuesdays and Thursdays, will soon finish this phase of the season, which will be followed by a tournament.

On January 16, the Termites (soph.) and the Dashers (frosh.) clashed; the results of the struggle showed the Termites with 17 points, all but two of which were marked up by Marg Nafziger, and the Dashers with 5. The same afternoon the juniors defeated the senior team by a score of 12 to 6.

In a thrilling overtime game on January 10, the sophomore Hornets stung the Seniors with a 10-8 score, Willie High's basket giving the needed points for the winning side. In the second game the unbeaten freshman Zips faced the Termites, the last threat to their supremacy, and emerged still unbeaten, although the fluctuating score made the outcome uncertain until the last minutes when a couple of Garber's shots connected, making the final score 16-10.

Scoring honors in the Juniors vs. Huskies game on January 23 went to Mary K. Plank and E. Swartzendruber, who contributed 15 and 12 points, respectively, to their side of the score blank. The freshmen led 20-19 when the whistle ended the suspense of an overtime. The Hornets upset the favored Termites in the next game, 12-11, with Mary K. Nafziger adding 10 points to the winner's score.

In the first game on January 25 the opposing sides of a well refereed game were the Termites and the Seniors; the sophomores ended on top with a score of 20-11. Two freshmen teams met in the second game—the Zips and the Dashers. Led by Garber, the Zips really piled up the points; the score stood 31 and 4 at the end of the fourth quarter.

MINISTERS AND TH. B STUDENTS FOUND ACTIVE

We also have on our campus a number of busy full-time ministers of other denominations. William Hughes, formerly of Akron, N. Y., is beginning his seventh year of preaching, and is now pastor of the United Brethren church at Albion, Indiana. Russell Sloat, a returned missionary from West Africa, has been taking Bible work at Goshen College since his return to this country last June. He is a member of the Bethel MBC church and has been attending missionary conferences in Ohio, at the Bethel church, and at Constantine, Michigan, in recent weeks. He learned very recently that he is scheduled to return to Nigeria in May. Richard Reilly has been pastor of the MBC church in Nappanee for the past two and one-half years, having charge of all the church activities. Ray Tucker climaxed his four-year study at Olivet College, Kankakee, Illinois, last spring by obtaining a wife, a ThB degree, and a Nazarene church appointment—all within a month! Russell Miller, who has entered the Bible department for the second semester, is working at the Oak Grove MBC church at Nappanee. Before coming to Goshen College, Mr. Miller attended DePauw University, Winona Bible College, and the Fort Wayne Bible Institute. James Gurley, another second semester newcomer, is pastor of the Baptist church at Warsaw, Indiana, and has previously attended the Fort Wayne Bible Institute, University of Tennessee, and Grace Seminary.
